

I want our law to remain as is. Wisconsin citizens need to make it clear to the Federal government that we do not want to be exposed to telemarketing from a businesses or its affiliates simply because we have had contact with the business. We need to make certain that the FCC puts consumers, not big telemarketers, first.

Banks who ask the FCC to replace the Wisconsin law with a federal law that allows companies to telemarket former customers for up to 18 months after cancellation of services are the last ones that should be allowed to call us. Isn't this country in enough financial trouble?

When I left AT&T they harrassed me endlessly for a year after I quit them, calling early mornings when I work 2nd shift really upsets me to this day. I quit them for a reason and repeatedly told them to leave me alone. It wasn't until one WI woman sued them and WON that this law actually did something for me.
